

ARE THEY DANGEROUS?

With guns like these?
You betcha!

Well, okay, no. We're not exactly predator proof.

In fact - don't tell anyone
I said this - but we've got terrible defenses!

I don't bite,
I don't sting,
I'm not poisonous...

... I'm just delicious.

But you're not going
to eat me, are you?

Oh, you're worried
about your plants?
Don't be.

I'm not like my savage locust buddies - I only drink sap and would never hurt your plants...

If I were you, the only thing
I'd consider doing is wrapping
up your young saplings.

Fertile cicada women can be vicious, and when they start laying eggs, they can really go nuts on the limbs of young trees.

Shrubs, flowers, older
trees, and veggies
will be just fine.

... but why are we
talking about all
that nonsense when
we could be talking about ... ME?
